

U. S., Soviet Training Will Be Compared

Two University of Arizona physicists will compare American and Soviet Union training of scientists at the meeting tomorrow evening of the Young Democrats of Greater Tucson.

Dr. John Robson, assistant professor of physics, will discuss Russian philosophies and techniques by which large numbers of experts have been turned out in the last 20 years.

Dr. James E. McDonald, senior physicist of the university's Institute of Atmospheric Physics, will discuss the ways in which overemphasis on academic frills and life-adjustment philosophy have weakened the U. S. educational system and hindered gifted students.

The 8 p.m. meeting, part of a program to offer relatively non-partisan talks of interest to all Tucsonians, will be held in Superior Court, room No. 5, and will be open to the public without charge.
